

NFL - 2009 Fantasy Football Week 14 Survivor Pool Picks

Written by Patrick Mayo

Thursday, 10 December 2009 00:00 - Last Updated Thursday, 10 December 2009 10:57

Below, we rank the teams from best to worst concerning the certainty of victory this week. We're very confident that the top teams will win. We're not so confident that the bottom teams will win.

Ask a question about your line-up in our FORUM . Leave a comment about this article down below.

SURVIVOR POOL PICKS

1. BAL v DET - The Ravens will get back to their winning ways.
2. NE v CAR - The Pats are undefeated at home; don't expect that to change.
3. TEN v STL - There's a reason the Rams only have one win.
4. NO @ ATL - The undefeated Saints will want to clinch the division this week.
5. GB @ CHI - The Aaron Rodgers aerial show will have Soldier Field cleared out by halftime.
6. PIT @ CLE - The Steelers need a win to stay in the playoff race; good thing they play the Browns.
7. HOU v SEA - Seattle only has one road win, and they aren't playing St. Louis this week.
8. IND v DEN - Keep riding the Colts until they lose.
9. NYJ @ TB - Clemens at QB makes it more interesting, but don't bet against the Jets.
10. SD @ DAL - Nobody's better than SD in December; nobody's worse than Dallas.
11. ARI @ SF - The Cards should jump on the chance to clinch on the division.
12. WAS @ OAK - A nice spot for the Skins to grab their 4th win.
13. MIA @ JAC - The Dolphins will relish the opportunity to throw a wrench in the AFC playoff picture.
14. CIN @ MIN - The Bengals have been up to the task all year long.
15. PHI @ NYG - That time of year where the Eagles start winning, Giants are better on the road anyways.
16. BUF @ KC - Bills have incentive to win; they can't afford the draft pick they'd get with a loss.

Again, ask a question about your line-up in our FORUM . Leave a comment about this article down below.