

NFL - 2009 Fantasy Football Week 15 Survivor Pool Picks

Written by Patrick Mayo

Thursday, 17 December 2009 00:00 - Last Updated Thursday, 17 December 2009 11:13

Below, we rank the teams from best to worst concerning the certainty of victory this week. We're very confident that the top teams will win. We're not so confident that the bottom teams will win.

Ask a question about your line-up in our FORUM . Leave a comment about this article down below.

SURVIVOR POOL PICKS

1. ARI @ DET - The Cardinals get back to their winning ways in Motor City.
2. DEN v OAK - Denver should have no problem handling Charlie Frye at home.
3. MIN @ CAR - The Adrian Peterson show will roll through Carolina.
4. HOU @ STL - The Texans' late-season run will not be stopped against the lowly Rams.
5. BAL v CHI - The Bears defense won't be able to contain Ray Rice and the Ravens.
6. SEA v TB - Seattle only wins in two ways: at home and against terrible teams. This week they get both.
7. NYJ v ATL - Redman and Snelling won't be able to halt the Jets' recent surge.
8. SD v CIN - Winners of 8 straight, San Diego will claim their well deserved #2 seed at home.
9. PHI v SF - Never put any hope in a west coast team playing in an early east coast game.
10. NE @ BUF - A cold-weather game will be closer than expected.
11. KC v CLE - The battle of the basement should go to the home team.
12. IND @ JAC - The Colts should dominate as long as their starters stay in.
13. NO v DAL - You can't bet against the Saints against the Decemberly challenged Cowboys.
14. TEN v MIA - Miami's Cinderella run will finally turn into a pumpkin at Tennessee.
15. WAS v NYG - A Monday night upset is brewing.
16. PIT v GB - the closest match-up of the week could go either way.

Again, ask a question about your line-up in our FORUM . Leave a comment about this article down below.